Modernized Account Code Resources on the Controller's Office Website

We recently completed a significant update to the Controller's Office website focused on improving how users access account code information. The updated pages provide a more modern, intuitive experience and include keyword search and filtering functionality.

We encourage anyone involved in financial processing, reconciliation, budgeting, or reporting to review the updated content and bookmark the revised account code pages for future reference.

If you have feedback on the updates or suggestions for additional improvements, please feel free to share them with the Controller's Office. In tandem with this release, we have created a brief but targeted on-demand training resource on account codes, available now on PageUp.

Thank you for your continued partnership, we hope this update enhances your user experience.

The Ledger: What's Inside Each Issue?

The Ledger link on the Controller's Office website remains unchanged, though the format has been updated.

To improve searchability and ease of use, each issue now includes a brief list beneath the link identifying the articles contained in that issue. This allows readers to quickly scan topics and more efficiently locate relevant materials.
